“In terms of the product itself, now we’re away from Genoa there is no doubt that it has vastly increased the sheen on the paint surface. I look forward to hear from the deck crew how it fairs over several months. I can see benefit’s in its use in other, less aged paintjobs. The treatment on Laurel is obvious probably a bit late in the paint’s lifespan. If caught earlier in the lifecycle I could see the potential life expectancy being extended, which is always something of interest. Even with Laurel’s paint there is a marked improvement, for that I can certainly congratulate you with your product! Thank you for pulling the project together at such short notice as well.”

“I was very impressed with the Tribos System and the finished result, if you can delay a paint job on a yachts hull/superstructure for few or more years, then having this system applied has got to be a serious consideration for any captain’.
